Re: Charges Against Ross Mirkarimi, Sheriff of the City and County of San Francisco

Dear Mr. St. Croix and Ms. Ng:

We have enclosed seven sets of tabbed copies of Mayor Exhibits 50 and 84-87 – one set for each of the Commissioners' exhibit binders, one set for the witness exhibit binder, and an extra set.

We are re-submitting this copy of Exhibit 50 (a four-page exhibit that is a chain of emails) because the earlier copy that we submitted inadvertently excluded the first page of the exhibit.

We request that these be added to the tabbed exhibit binders that we provided earlier. If Commission staff is unable to do this today due to time constraints, then I can arrange for a member of our staff to arrive at the hearing early to insert these exhibits in the binders. Please let me know.

Thank you again for your courtesy and cooperation in these matters.

Very truly yours,

DENNIS J. HERRERA
City Attorney

The number one thing you must do is call the police (don't threaten to call, just take Theo and run into a neighbor's house or down the street or lock yourself in the car, or in the same room with him, even if he's calmed down, whatever is needed) every time there is an incident. There is no other type of evidence as important as this. Even if you call 911 and then by the time they get there everything is "fine" you have to call. I called our therapist to ask for a referral for someone who works with couples in your situation (men like Ross, not normal couples). I called a DA friend and an attorney who used to work with battered women. When you get back, we'll get everyone's advice.

I think that you cannot believe that a woman as smart, strong, educated, and independent as you are could be in this type of marriage, but that's because domestic violence and bad marriages are like being a frog in a pot of boiling water--if you threw the frog into already boiling water, it would jump out, but if you put the frog in when the water is fine, and then slowly increase the heat until it's boiling, the frog will stay in and die. You're the frog. So if Ross won't stop boiling you and Theo alive, you'll have to jump out.

Abe and I were so sad yesterday for you and Theo. We had increasingly been worried about what a terrible husband Ross is, but like you, we thought, surely that's the worst of it and after the election things will get better. Now we can see that was foolish of us.

The checklists for "are you a battered woman" include very little about violence, you know, because it's the emotional abuse that makes up 99% of the pain. Ross fits the profile perfectly. Controlling and withholding about money, trying to isolate you from friends and family...I know Ross doesn't realize it yet, but he is about to find out (or deny forever) that he is an abusive husband. Remember, regular relationships include romance and fun and at times SO DO ABUSIVE RELATIONSHIPS. Just because you love him or he is "sorry" or you aren't perfect either doesn't mean you are not being abused.

We'll be here for you whether he can change or can't change and you need a divorce. I'm sorry we didn't realize sooner how serious your situation was. We want to help protect you and Theo.

-Ivory.

Hi dear!

We are leaving to Monterrey. Can you believe it? Today, Monday. I'm so tired.

I feel like the character in the book you were talking about: "my husband is taking me to a route trip!"

We are coming back tomorrow and Ross will work again and I will have my life and peace back.

I will call you!!

Thank you!

Eliana, I called a couple of friends who aren't in the area for advice.

I will call our therapist today.

Are you home? I'd like to talk in person this morning if we can!

Hello dear!!

It was so helpful to talk to you! Thank you so much! I feel better. I was talking with my dad as well, he is so smart and helped me to get in my center again.

Please, send me the inf from your therapist. Looks like Ross is doing research too.

I'm with Theo now.

Don't get too worried, the problems are there to face them and solve them not for feel sorry.

Love

Eliana.

While working with Inspector Daniele # 427 on this investigation. It was arranged for B- Mirkarimi through his attorney Bob Waggener for B - Mirkarimi to surrender himself at county jail # 1. B - Mirkarimi arrived and was booked for the listed charges. B - Mirkarimi was served an Emergency Protective Order after his booking by Inspector Daniele # 427 and explained the conditions of the Emergency Protective Order. B was also told he needed to turn in his firearms in twenty four hours. B stated he had two firearms at home and stated the firearms were buried deep inside the house and sold a 357 caliber revolver long ago. B attorney Bob Waggener stated he would make arrangements to surrender the two firearms B had in his possession to Inspector Daniele #427 and me tomorrow and would phone when he his ready to meet with us. I asked B if he had a firearm on his person at this time B stated no he was not issued a firearm. I asked B if he had his own firearm on his person. B stated he did not and raised his suit coat at this time to show he did not have a firearm.

Addendum to Application for Emergency Protective Order Question #3: The events that cause the protected person to fear immediate and present danger of domestic violence.

Additional grounds presented for Emergency Protective Order are:

The video was not available for the initial magistrate to view. This magistrate reviewed the video which shows the fear and emotion of victim. The video references a second domestic violence incident. The video references that Ross Mirkarimi has told the victim that he has a lot of power and he can take away her child.

A second witness was found who also spoke to the victim on January 3, 2012. This witness' statements corroborate the events of December 31, 2011 as told by the reportee. The second witness also corroborates a visible injury on the victim's arm which was characterized as a large bruise. The second witness also corroborates that there was a prior domestic violence incident in or about March 2011.

The reportee was interviewed a second time on January 11, 2011 and she provided additional details of the event on December 31, 2011. The victim told the reportee that Ross Mirkarimi told her not to talk to anyone and not to leave the house after the incident on December 31, 2011. On January 1, 2012, when Ross Mirkarimi was in the shower, the victim took this opportunity to leave her residence and go to the reportee's home where she proceeded to tell the reportee the domestic violence incident of December 31, 2011. In this second interview, the reportee also elaborated on the victim's fear of the impact the abuse is having on their young child. The child was present and witnessed the verbal and physical by Ross Mirkarimi.

With these additional facts of the continued power and control Ross Mirkarimi has over the victim and the impact of the violence on the young child, there is an urgency to break that control and the continued abuse with the issuance of an Emergency Protective Order.

Starting at 1:24

Dan Noyes: And now his defense team is stepping up criticism of next door neighbor Ivory Madison, who reported the incident to police against the wishes of Mirkarimi's wife.

David Waggoner: This is a comic book that was authored by Ivory Madison.

DN: Madison is a publisher and comic book author who calls The Huntress her feminist-mafia-noir graphic novel.

DW: Madison writes on the back "The line between justice and vengeance is a thin one." And one has to really begin to wonder, what's really happening here? You know, is this case really based on fact or is it based on fiction?
