Summary:

The Political Reform Act of 1974, requires specified disclosures in advertisements regarding the source of the advertisement. The act defines "advertisement" for this purpose as a general or public communication that is authorized and paid for by a committee for the purpose of supporting or opposing a candidate or candidates for elective office or a ballot measure or ballot measures. This bill would exclude an email message from the requirements relating to an electronic media advertisement and, instead, would require an email message that is paid for by a committee, other than a political party committee or a candidate controlled committee established for an elective office of the controlling candidate, to include the specified disclosures regarding who paid for the advertisement in the same manner as an Internet Web site.

Summary:

The Bagley-Keene Open Meeting Act requires, with specified exceptions, that all meetings of a state body, as defined, be open and public, and all persons be permitted to attend any meeting of a state body, except as provided. Current law, among other things, requires a state body that elects to conduct a meeting or proceeding by teleconference to post agendas at all teleconference locations, to identify each teleconference location in the notice and agenda, and to make each teleconference location accessible to the public. This bill, for an advisory board, advisory commission, advisory committee, advisory subcommittee, or similar multimember advisory body that does not have rulemaking authority, would instead require a member of a state body participating by teleconference to be listed in the meeting minutes.

Summary:

The Political Reform Act of 1974, provides for the comprehensive regulation of campaign financing and activities. Existing law under the act requires advertisements to include prescribed disclosure statements, and defines an advertisement for these purposes. Existing law excludes a number of communications from the definition of advertisement, such as a communication from an organization, other than a political party, to its members. This bill would exclude additional types of communications from the definition of advertisement, including certain electronic media communications requested by the recipient, communications solicited by the recipient, or communications for which inclusion of disclosures would be impracticable or severely interfere with the committee's ability to convey the intended message, as determined by regulations of the Fair Political Practices Commission.

Current law also authorizes the Fair Political Practices Commission to enter into such agreements with the City Council of the City of Stockton and the City Council of the City of Sacramento, respectively.
